Attention Klamath Tribal Members!

Next “Regular” General Council is scheduled for Saturday May 21, 2011 at 10am.

Blood Quantum and GRC ad-hoc reports will be two of the items on that agenda.

Blood Quantum Poll: Tribal Council needs for Tribal members to call in and relay how they feel about the blood quantum issue. Please select one of the 3 options listed here and let us know your thoughts:

1. Keep the blood degree the same at ¼ and not change the Constitution.
2. Lower the blood degree to 1/8 and change the Constitution
3. Lower the blood degree to 1/16 and change the Constitution.

This is only a poll, the results will be discussed at the May 21, 2011 General Council meeting, you can call (541) 783-2219 ext. 170 or 100, or e-mail: gary.frost@klamathtribes.com or torina.case@klamathtribes.com or you can write a letter to: Tribal Council Chairman, P.O. Box 436, Chiloquin, Oregon 97624. Thank you. Your assistance will be appreciated.

Vice Chairman Gentry, Mayor Todd Kellstrom, and Tribal Chairman Gary Frost honor a true artist, Tony Tecumseh, as he's awarded the Native American Lifetime Achievement Music Award.

Afterglow….is truly the name that represented a long journey for Klamath Tribal Elder, Anthony "Tony" Tecumseh

March 15, 2011, marked a great day for Tony. During a small ceremony at the City Hall in Klamath Falls, Oregon, Mr. Tecumseh was presented with the prestigious Native American Lifetime Achievement Music Award for his contributions to music since 1960 with his band Afterglow. Originally, Mr. Tecumseh had been asked to travel to New York City to receive this award, but health and funding issues became a factor, so his band moved the small ceremony to his hometown of Klamath Falls, Oregon.

Tony Tecumseh has lived in Klamath Falls his entire life and is a founding member, guitarist, vocalist and songwriter for the long-lost rock band Afterglow. He may be, in fact, one of the very first Native American rock and roll composers in history. One of his songs, "Riding Home Again" written in 1964, seems to sum up parts of Klamath Country.

The story of Tony and his bandmates is extremely unique and the subject of an upcoming documentary scheduled to be aired on PBS.

How did this come about?
Completely unaware of their impact on the fans of the 1960's rock scene, the members of Afterglow, Ron George, bass guitar & vocals; Gene Resler, guitar & vocals; Roger Swanson, keyboards & vocals; Tony Tecumseh, guitar, vocals, songwriter; and Larry Alexander, drums, carried on with their lives oblivious to the world that loves their work. After 40 years, these five friends recently discovered that their album didn’t fail; it just took its own sweet time to succeed.

In the mid sixties Afterglow was known as the Medallions when the group was brought to the attention of Leo De Gar Kulka, world renowned record producer, who offered the five young men from rural California an opportunity to come to San Francisco and record an album at his famous Golden State Recorders studio. The young men, students at Chico State University, took the summer of 1967 off work and school to live at Alexander’s parents’ house while they wrote and practiced the 20 songs requested by the producer.

Once the songs were ready, the five ambitious and talented musicians loaded up a trailer and headed to San Francisco. It was October 1967 and the musicians spent the time recording their songs at the famous studio, attending the requisite photo shoots, and meeting with producers. When the band left San Francisco, they were confident that the inevitable national tours and press junkets would show the world the quality of musicianship to be found in rural Northern California.

The band mates resumed their studies and waited. Soon, the call came. The album was... finished and in San Francisco ready to be shipped. Alexander remembers the rollercoaster of emotions that the album’s arrival evoked. The recording was top notch. He also felt a strong disconnect as he stared at the extremely modern album cover. The band members were, for all essential purposes, unrecognizable and in fact, other than the song writers’ acknowledgements, their names didn’t appear anywhere on the album.

The band didn’t hear anything else much from the producers or the record label, MTA Records in New York City. Locally, the music was popular and, in fact, Alexander remains very proud of the fact that the band’s signature song “Riding Home Again” was number one for over 20 weeks on KSYC, then a popular rock and roll radio station in Yreka, California. The band performed and traveled whenever and wherever they could, but calls to the record label were not returned. The cost of self promotion soon prohibited any more efforts and the band settled back in Chico, getting their degrees, playing here and there and moving on with life. In 1968 the members of Afterglow went on to other careers including military service, accounting, engineering and even a mayoral term.

Were albums sold? If so, no one told the young men who wrote and performed the music. The whole experience continued to exist, to the band, in the same emotional place it landed when Larry first opened that box in 1968 – bittersweet.

Nearly 30 years later, without their knowledge, the album secured rock and roll cult status and the attention of a notable producer, Bob Irwin, of Sundazed Music in New York. Irwin was so impressed with the album that he purchased the rights, produced an internationally released compact disc in 1995 and a new vinyl version in 2001. Irwin’s efforts were well received and a commercial success. The music company, its passionate founder and the new crop of fans, however, had a problem.

No one could find the band.

It wasn’t until one of Alexander’s employees found the album in the office one day and, on a whim, decided to do an internet search. “You know, we were sitting there while the site loaded” Alexander remembers “and when it popped up on the screen, for sale in stores around the world, re-released twice on compact disc and vinyl, and reviewed and bought by the thousands, I practically fell out of my chair.”

A quick call to Sundazed Music was met with a “We’ve been looking for you guys for fifteen years!” and subsequent internet searches revealed that the band was indeed considered “long, lost” and the album, both the cover art and music “groundbreaking psychedelia”.

The band is now ready for their long delayed close-up. “It is, to me, a great American story” says Calvin Kennedy, founder of Freedom Films. “It is a story of five honest, dedicated young musicians who set their mind to it and produced a classic piece of art. Together, they and their families did what it took to deliver the goods. That is harder than most people think; particularly from rural Northern California and Southern Oregon in the mid sixties. I want to tell this story because it is, at its core, a story of validation and delayed gratification. These five guys knew they had done a good job forty years ago and to find out now that they succeeded, thirty years later is as interesting a story as I have seen in quite a while. I also see that there is a fan base out there who wants to get to know these guys better. It is going to be a great film.”

The film and the performance were a success on many levels. “Wow, we signed autographs for almost an hour,” said guitarist Gene Resler. “Everyone who we met at the show was so supportive and thrilled to see us back together that we are determined to dust off the songbooks and instruments and produce another album as soon as we can.”

The band is planning more performances in conjunction with the film at venues throughout the country. “It shows that there are fans who want to see the story, enjoy the music and interact with the band” said Alexander. “It’s our job to see that we give them what they’ve been waiting for; stay tuned to see what happens next.”

Thank you goes to everyone who made Tony’s presentation happen. Special thanks to Tony, his daughter Dee and grandson, Douglas Tecumseh, for accommodating every request with good humor and for being such good friends. Also, special thanks to the dignitaries, Mayor Todd Kellstrom, Tribal Chairman Gary Frost and Tribal Vice-Chairman Don Gentry, who were so accommodating and respectful of Tony and his accomplishments. Thank you to Larry and the crew for helping us capture a very special and historical moment.

Soon there will be some follow-up shortly to identify and accomplish the next steps needed for elevating the special and true story of Artist Mr. Tony Tecumseh, Afterglow and the Nammys.

March 16, 2011, a meeting was held in Klamath Falls, Oregon, to provide an update on the status for the Determination by the U.S. Sec of Interior whether to recommend the removal of four dams on the Klamath River per the Klamath Hydroelectric Agreement. The meeting also provided a forum for the community and the government agencies to discuss the process that will inform the Secretary of the Interior’s decision on dam removal.

Since this was a open public meeting, members of general public along with various stakeholders of the KBRA/KHSa were in attendance. The Klamath Tribes was well represented by both official leadership and interested tribal members. The tribal reps and members in attendance were able to hear a report on the current progress and development of the determination and place questions and comments into the official record. For those who were unable to attend but would still like to place questions or comments into the official record that opportunity still exists by visiting the official web site, www.klamathrestoration.gov.

The Klamath Tribes were officially represented by KTNT members, Vice-Chairman, Don Gentry, Jeff Mitchell, Larry Dumsmore, Senior Aquatics Biologist, Will Hatcher, NR Director, Tribal Council member, Shawn Jackson and Tribal Treasurer Brandi Decker. The meeting was also well attended by interested tribal membership. If you have any questions, please contact Tribal Government at 541-783-2219.

Tribal Event Coordinators for 2011: Tribal Council appointed the following Tribal event coordinators for 2011. If you have any questions or suggestions for these events please feel free to contact these individuals.

Memorial Day Rodeo – Richard Tupper
Memorial Day pow-wow – Leoma Wilson
Restoration Treaty Days Youth Rodeo – Marvin Garcia
Restoration pow-wow – Diane Walker

Note: the Restoration fun run walk & barbeque are coordinated by Tribal Health and the parade is coordinated by Tribal Administration.

Tribal Council has also recently approved the “Veterans pow-wow” as a new annual Tribal event held in connection to Veterans Day in November – Catherine “Mex” Weiser is the current coordinator for that event.

Newly appointed Committee members: Tribal Council recently took action to appoint the Enrollment Committee: Karen Ray, Cleo Atchley and Sharon Harrington. Eileen “Bucky” Hobbs-Martinez was appointed to the Culture and Heritage Committee and Bonna Pool, Jeannie McNair, Steve Weiser, Darlene Melendres, and Eileen “Bucky” Hobbs-Martinez were appointed to the Health Advisory Committee. Applications are still being accepted for the Housing Advisory Committee and Education Committee, most of the other Committees have enough for a quorum and are meeting and taking care of business. If you wish to be added to any of the active committees, just send in an application and the Council will consider the addition.

Due to lack of funding, The Klamath Tribes General Assistance Program (GA) is no longer accepting applications.

As you may have noticed, the tribal newsletter has not been able to feature Priority 4 (Individual Tribal Member Information articles) on a regular basis, months have been combined, and the obituaries have also had to be put on hold until space would allow. This is due to the fact this program has limited funding and resources. Therefore, we cannot expand our newsletter or website at this time to accommodate those articles that are used as fillers. Program funding comes from a government grant therefore, it is necessary to place Priority 1 (Government) and Priority 2 (Program Information) before any other notices. Also, it is now necessary that submissions be sent electronically to the following email: Sorry for any inconvenience.

Thank you,

Klamath Tribal Council Public Meetings and Flag Ceremony at Chemawa Indian School

Public meetings for Klamath Tribal Government and the members of the Klamath Tribes, were held in Portland, Oregon and Eugene, on March 22-23, 2011. Both locations were filled with tribal members who had concerns and questions about the following issues: Blood quantum, historical trauma of the tribal people and recovery, Aurora project, hunting rights, deer populations, stopping the generational and spiritual curse of abuse, tribal service area, educational services, revenue allocation changes, casino changes and funds, truck stop issues and information, and forming committees in the urban areas to help the communication for the tribes. The Portland meeting was filled to capacity with tribal membership, and both locations featured the Enrollment Card ID machine for updated cards.

In Salem, Oregon, on March 23rd, 2011, the Klamath Tribal Council were honored guests at the Chemawa Indian school where the Council presented the school with a Klamath tribal flag. The flag is part of the school collection and is significant due to the fact the tribes have had so many tribal members and athletes attend the school, including football great, the late Benjamin "Ram" Lawver Jr. (1936-2000). His brother, Klamath Tribal Councilman, Bert Lawver, told how his brother was a great athlete and student at Chemawa where they both attended and excelled. Bert said, "My brother was drafted by the Green Bay Packers professional football team from 1959-1960. Then he returned to Chemawa to coach and teach for several years from 1963-1995, then in 2000, the football stadium was dedicated to his memory." The history and tribal involvement at Chemawa is long and historical. It is the hope of the Klamath Tribes that Chemawa can continue to educate native students from across the nation for many years to come.

At Chemawa, Superintendent Craig Wellman, met with our Council along with the Chemawa Seniors to accept the flag from the Tribes.

Panel speakers were diverse but all shared the same vision for Dam Removal and Support of the KBRA (Klamath Basin Restoration Agreement).

On April 20, 2011, a meetings was held at Ross Raglund in Klamath Falls, Oregon, to discuss the support of the KBRA, Dam Removal, and community conversations about the future of everyone in the Klamath basin. Special thanks goes to Chip Massey, Director of the Chamber of Commerce for facilitating the event. Great Job!

The meetings are a monthly speaker series called KLAMATH CONVERSATIONS sponsored by: PROSPER, Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, Klamath Water Users, Upper Klamath Water Users Association, and the Klamath Tribes, in an effort to educate the community about the importance of fish and farms and the necessity of working together for a healthy ecosystem. The theme for this meeting was: C’waam and Salmon: Fish as a Commodity, Culture and Ecology.

The events are free and open to the public. Questions are always welcome and refreshments are served. For more information or to find out the next meeting location please contact: Don Gentry or Jeff Mitchell at 541-783-2219 or (541) 891-5971.

Vice Chairman, Don Gentry, spoke about the importance of the fish and his personal experiences growing up on the river. He knows the fish and culture are vital to our existance.
University of Oregon Students spend a week with the Klamath Tribes

In March, 2011, University students joined some JOM High school students, during their spring break, to travel to Southern Oregon to participate in a rural and cultural experience with the Klamath Tribes of Oregon. The project came to fruition after efforts spearheaded by Klamath tribal member, Dr. Tom Ball, were so successful last year during a similar project.

This year, the project was blessed to have Klamath Tribal Member, Derek Kimbol, a senior at the University of Oregon, act in the capacity of Project Manager, under the direction of Dr. Ball. Together they worked with the Klamath Tribes and the JOM program coordinator, Will Riddle, and Director Brenda Frank, to bring both high school and the University students together. Their week included visits to the Klamath Marsh, Lava Beds, story telling, rebuilding and clean-up of Edison Chiloquin's camp, Plaiknii village, Link river trail, home dinners, Cultural presentations from Perry Chocktoot, tours at Kla-Mo-Ya Casino, Gaming Regulatory Commission, Tribal Health, the Wellness Center, Tribal admin., the Tribal research facility, and visits with Elders like Gow Godowa, and the Hill and Saluskin family, just to name a few.

The week was filled with spiritual healing and enlightenment for all involved and students from the University said this experience touched their heart and soul, and literally had a profound affect on them. Closing ceremonies were provided at the Tribal Congregate Center where the students shared their personal stories and provided dinner to the honored guests.

Special thank you goes to everyone who participated and make this journey a success. Especially, Mr. Kimbol and Dr. Ball, for all their hard work and vision to bring people together, so we can all have a better understanding of what is necessary for our future.

Did you know April was National Alcohol Awareness Month—Honoring a special young Man...

Since April is National Alcohol Awareness Month. Lynn Bettles has been working with Dr. Janasek at the Tribal Medical Clinic to put together a patient education campaign. She provided the clinic with some handouts about alcohol abuse and simple screening forms that are anonymous that clients may complete if they desire. If they want to talk to a medical provider for help for referral, they are welcome to do that at the time of their visit.

This was done to honor the memory of her late step son Ian. Lynn says, "As many of you know, my step-son Ian Bettles, passed away New Years Day a little over a year ago. Alcohol had a role in his death, as it does for so many of our young people. I have taken on this project to honor him and to promote awareness in our community so maybe other lives can be spared the awful effects that alcohol permeates through families."

Thank you, Lynne Bettles

Note from Dr. Janasek, "Most of you have had exposure to alcohol, both good and bad. Sometimes beer, wine, and liquor are enjoyed in celebration. However, sometimes alcohol is used by people to medicate their own psychological or physical problems—always with bad results eventually. It is a root cause of many of the tragedies that have been all too common in the Klamath Tribes.

When studied on a population level by multiple sources including the CDC, IHS, and WHO, American Indians/Alaska Natives as a whole are more likely to drink alcohol at a young age, binge drink, and drive while intoxicated than the general population of the United States. That leads to a staggering statistic: American Indians and Alaska Natives are up to seven times more likely to die from alcohol than the general population. That is because alcohol is a known cause of injury both unintentional and intentional; liver disease and cirrhosis; and liver, oral, breast, and colon cancer; among many other health problems. Alcohol leads to family disruption, poverty, and violent crime among other social problems. A healthy adult male with no other health problems will start to suffer ill effects from as few as two 12 ounce beers on a daily basis, and with women that starts with one daily drink.

Alcohol is not necessary in anyone’s life, but can be enjoyed responsibly. If you feel that you or someone you know are not in control of your beer, wine, or liquor, let us know at the Wellness Center or Alcohol and Drug program and we’ll help as best we can.

Dr. Mitch Janasek, Medical Director at the Klamath Tribal Wellness Center

Attention Klamath Tribal Wellness Patients
New Electronic Scheduling System

Klamath Tribal Health is pleased to announce that they are enhancing their services by implementing a new electronic scheduling and demographic system. The new system will improve the accuracy of demographic patient information and update the scheduling system that the clinic currently uses.

What will this mean for our patients?
Patients will continue to check in with the Patient Registration department as their first stop when visiting the clinic. This process will be a little more time consuming, especially in the beginning as patients and staff become familiar with the new system. There may be some additional paperwork for patients to complete at Patient Registration. In the beginning, you will also be asked to stop by the medical and dental window to do a quick check in with them, but we hope to eventually eliminate this step as the front office staff will be notified electronically that you have arrived. To make this transition as easy as possible, please arrive early so you have plenty of time for the staff to check you in before your appointment time.

The staff at Klamath Tribal Health is excited about this new system and feel that it is the first step in improving patient care for our clients. Please bear with us as we learn this new system.

Blessing and Prayers for the fish to return

I would like to take this time and thank the Forest Improvement Crew for their help preparing the C’waam Ceremony grounds this last Friday. They worked as a finely tuned machine out there, with each crew member supporting the other. The success of the ceremony could be traced back to the hard work that the crew did out there that day. I would like to point out that the two supervisors Charley Bates and Roland Crume did a very fine job coordinating the crew and by participated in the work themselves have the respect of their crew and my respect also.

From the Culture and Heritage Department a big Thank You is in order!

Director of Culture and Heritage Department

Vice Chairman, Don Gentry, Director of Culture and Heritage, Perry Chocktoot Jr., and Fish Handler, Rayson Tupper, bring their good spirits and prayers to the Annual C’waam Ceremony which took place along the Sprague River near the old Chiloquin Dam Site, in Chiloquin, Oregon. This ceremony is sacred and was re-introduced by the Tribes at the Elders Direction, to give thanks to the Creator and to ensure the survival of both the fish species and human beings.
Meet Dentist's, Anita Masaitis, DMD, Tribal Dental Director, and Edward (Ned) Walker, DDS. You can see their smiling faces at the Tribal Dental Wellness Center in Chiloquin, Oregon. Anita comes to us from Nanitoke, PA, and Dr. Walker found his way to us from Colorado. Their message today is simple. Your teeth and gums are important to them and your over-all health care, especially where Diabetes is concerned. Diabetes not only affects the feet and eyes, but also has an impact on your teeth. Infection is a huge concern for the diabetic patient. Few people realize that cavities are a dental infection. Gum disease is a dental infection. Both of these conditions affect everyone and have a greater impact on the diabetic.
Is has been proven that untreated gum disease has a direct relationship to increased heart disease. For the diabetic, having an active infection makes it more difficult to control your blood sugar.

We here at the Chiloquin Wellness Center Dental Clinic would like to welcome you to come in for a dental screening. Please make dental health part of your overall health.

Make your appointment today. We'd love to see you. Call us at 541-783-3293 or Anita at 541-783-3295 X 319
