THE KLAMATH TRIBES NEWS RELEASE

Klamath Tribes Approve the First Amendment to the Klamath Basin Restoration Agreement

Chiloquin, OR - On December 17, 2012 the Klamath Tribes, by referendum vote of 508 in favor and 77 oppose, reaffirmed their commitment to the Klamath Basin Restoration Agreement (KBRA) by directing the Klamath Tribal Chairman to sign the First Amendment to the KBRA.

The amendments extend the time for passage of federal legislation, resolve tribal funding matters and clarify the federal partnership between the Tribes and United States envisioned under the KBRA. In addition the amendments clarify various provisions and update schedules for a number of actions in the KBRA.

"I am very pleased that our membership voted in support of the amendments. Though we still have much to do to pass legislation in Congress, the KBRA and its sister agreement the Klamath Hydroelectric Settlement Agreement provide the greatest opportunity to restore our tribal fisheries and achieve the goals of the Klamath Tribes" said Vice-chairman Don Gentry.

"The KBRA amendment process itself is a reminder that the KBRA is an effective, flexible, adaptive and efficient tool to address Klamath Basin water matters and an example of how things are working under the KBRA" said Councilman and lead negotiator, Jeff Mitchell. "We look forward to working with our partners and members of Congress in forging a path forward to resolve the Klamath Basin water issues and implement the KBRA and KHSAs."

The amendments became effective when all the parties signed the KBRA extension by December 31, 2012.

Klamath County Commissioners: Bellett, Linthicum, and Mallams are the only entity, of 42, who vote to pull out of the KBRA. Tribes, and others, believe they are putting their own community on a disaster course.

The Klamath County Board of Commissioners voted Tuesday, February 26, 2013, to withdraw from an agreement (KBRA) that lays out how to share scarce water between fish and farms, control power costs for irrigators, and restore broken down ecosystems.

The Herald and News, the local paper, reported that the board voted 3-0 to have the county's lawyer draw up an order to drop out of the Klamath Basin Restoration Agreement, with plans to vote on it again. The agreement is a companion to an historic deal to remove four small hydroelectric dams on the Klamath River in Oregon and Northern California to help restore struggling wild salmon runs.

Two other signatories of the agreement - the Karuk Tribe and the Klamath Water Users Association - say the county can't pull out, because the agreement is a binding contract that was just renewed for two more years.

"The Klamath County Commissioners are trying to put their own community on a disaster course," said Craig Tucker, Klamath coordinator for the Karuk Tribe. "If the KBRA fails, there's no way to address the dramatic increases to irrigators' power rates or create a soft landing for farmers when tribes use their senior water rights to fill the lake and river."

Tucker added that there is a good chance the four dams will be removed anyway if the owner, PacifiCorp, seeks a new operating license from federal regulators.

Greg Addington, executive director of the Klamath Water Users Association, added that the county should bring its complaints about the restoration agreement to the table, where the 41 other groups - tribes, salmon fishermen, conservationists, local governments, and irrigators that have signed it will give them serious consideration.

Members of the previous commission signed the agreement and voted to renew it before leaving office last year. The Newly elected members of the commission campaigned on a platform of getting the county out of the agreements, expressing reservations about removing the dams, the impacts on the county's economy and water storage.

The county has been locked in a battle for decades over sharing water between farms and endangered salmon and sucker fish- known as c'waam to the Klamath Tribes. Irrigation was shut down in 2001 to give the fish enough water to survive. When irrigation was restored in 2002, tens of thousands of adult salmon died in the river before they could swim upstream to spawn.

Klamath Tribal Vice-chairman Don Gentry, who attended all the commissioner meetings, said in a statement, "Everyone here is certainly dissappointed in the Klamath County Commissioner's decision. We don't understand why they didn't take advantage of the section in the KBRA that states, if a party wants to pull out, they must come talk to the other parties involved." He added, "It's certainly disheartening and apparent, based on their recent public statements, that they are mis-informed and don't understand the essential elements and benefits of what the KBRA actually provides to the Klamath River Basin."

However, despite their recent irresponsible actions, the Klamath Tribes and the 40 other parties signed on to the KBRA are still involved and committed to the success of the agreements. We know it is the only viable option for water management in our area.

Klamath Tribal Members and KBRA Supporters Rallied on the steps during the February 12th meeting called by the Klamath County Commissioners. In a questionable action, the Commissioners set this meeting even though support for the KBRA was voted on by the County and passed in December 2012 (requiring Klamath County to remain a party to the KBRA), and though Measure 18-80 was previously passed by Klamath County voters (requiring Klamath County to continue participation in the agreement). Klamath County Commissioners disregarded everything.

Detailed breakdown of Events of the Elections

Nominations for Election Board and Tribal Council will occur at the February General Council Meeting. Nominations must be accepted or declined, in writing, by nominees prior to adjournment of the General Council Meeting. This process will be on the General Council Agenda.

There will be a meeting with the Election Board to go over all election process documents and approve proposed standing rules.

Board will review explanations of absence – if any. Election Board will respond to the explanations by Certified Mail.

A list of nominees, who have accepted, will be forwarded to the Election Service Company. Upon receipt, the company will prepare the ballot.

TrueBallot, using proprietary software, electronically assembles a paper ballot for each voter and records and tracks its assembly and printing. TrueBallot will generate a unique ballot for each voter by high-speed laser printer containing ballot receipt information on the footer. The data on the perforated footer includes the name and address of the voter, the ballot return depository address, and an encrypted bar coded voter identification number. The voter identification number will consist of a bar code of the voter's identification number which can be encrypted, generated, and maintained only by TrueBallot.

There has been a deadline date set for the receipt of the 1-page campaign insert. This will allow for the preparation of the mail out to be completed by the required mail out date of ballots. Each candidate is responsible for their copies and delivery to the Election Service Company.

The Election Clerk will send a copy of the Eligible Voter's Mailing List to the Election Service Company.

A PO Box Number will be obtained separate from The Klamath Tribes Administration. Voting materials will have that address on the envelopes.

The return receipt used, by the Election Service Company, will have on the form a place for the eligible voter to sign their legal name and log their roll number. No nick names are to be used on the signature line.

By the specified date, the ballots will be mailed out to the eligible voters per the Eligible Voter's Mailing List provided by Member Benefits Department. Ballots will be returned to the specified PO Box. Ballots will remain at this box until the 61st day. No ballots will be placed in the PO Box after 5:00 pm on the specified date – 60 days following the nominations. On the following day (61st), they will be picked up by the Election Service Technician and designated Election Board Members and delivered to the facility to be tabulated.

Note: There will be no ballots accepted at any of the Tribal Offices, by any Tribal Staff, Election Board Members or Election Clerk.

If an eligible voter requests a ballot, due to not receiving one, lost or destroyed, another ballot will be issued.

The Election Service Company will keep documentation of all ballots sent out to whom and to what addresses. This documentation will serve as Election Records.

The Klamath Tribes will retain all election records on file.

The ScanVote verification system is a local area computer network with a flexible number of workstations which efficiently registers each returned ballot. Each station is a computer with a bar code reader and headphones. The station operation scans the bar code showing through the window of the return ballot envelope. Registration of the ballot checks the voter database to determine whether the voter has previously been registered, whether a duplicate ballot has been issued, and is otherwise eligible.

After ballots are verified, the outer ballot envelope may be opened. As the envelopes are opened, the return stubs are separated from the secret ballot envelopes and the ballots are then anonymous. The secret ballot envelopes are then opened; the ballots are removed and are then tabulated.

During the tabulation of ballots, all Tribal members interested may be present. There will be a blocked off area for the Election Board and Technicians. No one will be able to hold a one-on-one conversation with any Election Board Members.

In order to audit the optical scanning process, and to create general confidence in the computer system, we do a full public audit of the first batch of 50-100 ballots. True Ballot will project the image of each ballot from the batch onto a screen in the presence of all interested parties. The ballot image is compared to the database record that contains the tally data.

Tabulation is accomplished via optical/digital scanning of each ballot, using a high-speed optical scanner. The ballots are fed through an optical scanner and pictures or images of the ballots are captured and processed. After acquiring the images a separate processor analyzes each image to extract the data. Over-votes ballot images can be viewed on the computer screen to confirm that they do violate the rules or correct them. All images are saved and stored.

Upon completion of any phase, the network server writes the original data to CD-ROM. This provides a permanent, archived record of the original data, which can be reproduced but cannot be altered. This ensures the integrity and viability of the data.

At the conclusion of the process, TrueBallot certifies the results along with a written report. The CD-ROM with the tabulation data (including ballot images) and results is delivered to the organization together with the original voter list and voter registration data.

Results are transferred to the Tribal Certification Forms and posted.

Working Capitol Hill for Treaty Resource Protection

Klamath Tribal delegates, Vice-Chairman Don Gentry, Councilman Frank Summers (pictured here) along with Klamath Tribal Chairman Gary Frost and Public Relations manager Taylor David, traveled to Salem, Oregon, on February 20, 2013, to be a part of the Oregon Tribes Legislative Day at the State Capitol.

Legislative Day is an event in which the Nine Federally Recognized Tribal Governments come to the Capitol and meet with elected officials to discuss issues that may affect their Tribe and to share information about their Governments with Legislators, Capitol Staff, State Agencies and the Public. Councilmen Frost, Gentry and Summers participated in round table discussions and meetings with the Commission on Indian Services.

Klamath DC Delegation-

The Klamath Tribes information booth provided critical information regarding the ever present KBRA/KHSA push in Congress. The table provided current information on our efforts to finish this long campaign and ask for support from Senator Wyden and others in Washington, D.C. to finalize this massive effort and BRING HOME THE SALMON. Each visitor to the booth was provided an informational KBRA/KHSA Support hand-out, a Tribal logo salmon egg, a Bring the Salmon Home cell phone attachment, and a water bottle to remind everyone that like people... fish need clean water to live.

In February, delegates began making rounds on Capitol Hill, on behalf of the Tribe- at the Dept. of Interior- for Treaty Resource Protection. Members will be working hard now and into 2013 to establish both new and old connections.

Special thanks goes to the ladies who work diligently in the Commission on Indian Services office, Karen Quigley and Cass Ferder, for all their hard work and dedication. We appreciate you.

If you cannot respect our Existence... you can expect our Resistance!
We are Idle No More!

A peaceful and spiritual prayer demonstration was organized in downtown Klamath Falls, Oregon, on Saturday, December 29th, 2012, at the local county courthouse, as part of the ongoing Idle No More movement. The movement gained attention in Canada, the U.S.A., and abroad for the past several months.

Major attention to the growing movement was sparked in part by Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence, who launched a hunger strike in a bid to secure a face-to-face meeting with Prime Minister Stephen Harper. Her hunger strike stretched for nearly a month, with Spence vowing to survive on nothing more than fish broth and herbal tea until a meeting was finally set. The broader Idle No More movement urges the federal government to honour historic treaty agreements, and organizers are concerned that Bill C-45 -- the omnibus federal budget bill which they say erodes aboriginal rights -- was drafted with no input from aboriginal leaders in Canada. Spence took up residence on Victoria Island in the Ottawa River, wanting to discuss issues at Attawapiskat, her First Nations community located on James Bay. Spence is also calling for a new relationship between the federal government and First Nations peoples - Much like the Tribal people of the United States.

Tribal Councilman, Shawn L. Jackson, and tribal members Norma Cummings, Pinky Delaney, and Rayson Tupper rally for the Salmon at the Commissioners meeting on February 26th. Idle No More!

Father and Son, Les and Eddie Anderson come in support and honor of Idle No More. Their face paint represents the struggles and fight for tribal rights in the 21st Century.

JVN Screening Technician

What Is The JVN Program? Why Should I Get Screened?

What does JVN mean?

JVN stands for Joslin Vision Network. It began as a four-year study. The program was conducted at a health care center serving 4,000 individuals with diabetes. This study demonstrated the program’s effectiveness at increasing access to nationally accepted standards of eye care and treatment to prevent blindness:

- 50% increase in annual eye exams.
- 51% increase in laser treatments to prevent blindness.
- Lower cost with quality equal to or better than a normal eye exam.

What is the JVN Program?

Our JVN Eye Care Program is open to those who have a diabetes diagnosis. The program is known as a Teleophamology program; which means images taken here at our clinic are electronically transmitted securely to the National IHS-JVN Reading Center in Phoenix, Arizona. Images are evaluated by an expert team of ophthalmologists, optometrists and clinical staff. They interpret images, identify specific levels of diabetic retinopathy and provide appropriate treatment guidance for each patient.

What is Diabetic Retinopathy?

Diabetic Retinopathy is damage to the blood vessels in your eyes. Almost all individuals who have diabetes will eventually develop damage to blood vessels in their eyes. The damage to the blood vessels can sometimes grow to dangerous levels, ultimately leading to blindness.

Why should I get screened?

Diabetic Retinopathy does not have any physical pain associated with it and individuals usually do not experience visual symptoms until it is too late to prevent. Absolute vision-loss is the result.

Joslin Vision Network:
A Diabetic Retinopathy screening program. Known to lower the risk of diabetic blindness by more than 95%.

Diabetic Retinopathy:
Can be caused by an increase in blood sugar; which thins the walls of the tiny blood vessels in your eye, causing them to burst. High blood pressure and high cholesterol levels also contribute to Diabetic Retinopathy.

Sign and Symptoms:
Diabetes can cause vision in both eyes to change, even if you do not have retinopathy. Retinopathy symptoms may include:

- Spots, dots or dark strings floating in your vision
- Blurred vision, changes from blurry to clear
- Blank or dark areas in field of vision
- Poor night vision
- Colors appear washed out or different
- Vision loss

RE: 2013 Career& Job Expo

Dear Brenda :

The Career & Job Expo will be held on April 30, 2013 and is hosted by Klamath Community College. This year's event is made possible through grant funding from Oregon Communities Foundation and the Regional Workforce Investment Board.

The Career & Job Expo has two parts, the first is from 9 a.m. – 12:30 p.m., and will be open to area High School Sophomores and Juniors to learn about possible careers with your organization and what it would take to become an employee whether it be work experience or education.

There will be a break between 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. From 1:30 p.m. – 4:00 p.m. we will be open to the public, most of which are job seekers. Again, here is an opportunity to talk about your organization and how you might help those attending.

Through the generosity of Oregon Communities Foundation and Regional Workforce Investment Board, we are able to provide this event free of charge to all participants. We cannot offer lunch; however there are options for lunch.

Enclosed for your convenience is the SAVE THE DATE card with information on this year's Career & Job Expo. We would need to know if you are willing to participate, how many will be attending and if you need anything more than table and chairs by March 29, 2013 as spaces are limited. You can reach me at 541-884-5593 or via e-mail at pam@scoedd.org to reserve your space.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Pamela J Ruddock

Klamath Tribes Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System (BRFSS) Project

This spring, the Klamath Tribes have an exciting opportunity to gather information from Tribal members and improve our healthcare system, tribal programs, and other services we offer. It has been almost 11 years since we last conducted a BRFSS survey. The survey allows us to ask Tribal members what they need and gather suggestions for improvement.

Our plan is to survey adults 18 or older living in the Klamath Basin by phone. Tribal members who do the survey will receive a $20 gift card and a summary of the results will be presented at Tribal meetings later this year.

The BRFSS survey will be run by the Northwest Portland Area Indian Health Board (NPAIHB) cancer project staff. All information collected will remain confidential – no names will be given or other identifying data. Surveys will take approximately 25-30 minutes. Watch for a letter from Tribal Council and Tribal Health coming out soon. The letter will explain more about the survey and why we chose to participate.

It can make a big difference for us all!

Goodwill Vouchers Available 2013

FUNDING FOR MASTERS PROGRAM AVAILABLE BEGINNING JUNE 2013

The Klamath Tribes Community Services department has been approved to participate in the Goodwill Voucher Program for 2013. Each year the Southern Oregon Goodwill Industries sets their budget based on the number of agencies requesting assistance.

A request for funding went to the Klamath Tribes Distribution and Investment Board in March of 2012. This Board, which oversees the Klamath Tribes Revenue Allocation funding, in mid-August, awarded the Education & Employment Department funds for a Master Degree Study Program.

Vouchers may be exchanged at the Southern Oregon Goodwill store in Klamath Falls for merchandise, clothing or household items and are limited to a maximum dollar amount. New goods are excluded from the voucher program and are limited to one piece of furniture.

This funding will assist students entering into a Master Program after completing their baccalaureate and will be available beginning in June 2013. The application for the Masters Program will be available on-line or you may request one by calling, emailing or dropping by the office to pick one up.

The Klamath Tribes Community Services Department adheres to the following guidelines in issuing vouchers:

A graduate student will also need to apply to other sources for funding and a letter of award or denial will need to accompany the application. You may want to check with your institution's fellowship or scholarship programs for resources. It is not required that you receive the award or denial just that you applied.

- Vouchers will be available to any individual or family during the year. One person in the family must be an enrolled member of a federally recognized tribe in the United States.
- Applicant must meet the current income guidelines, which is 60% of the Oregon Median Income Guidelines.
- Head of household must sign the voucher at the time of issue.
- Applicants will only be eligible to receive $25.00, plus $5.00 for each additional household member up to the maximum amount allowed.
- Voucher must be used by the expiration date or it will be void.
- Only one item of furniture may be purchased on a voucher.
- One voucher is allowed per year per household.

The amount available for a student attending full time per academic year is $5,000. If the student is attending less than fulltime the amount is prorated. Remember, graduate program credit hours (CH) are calculated differently: Halftime is 3-5 CH, three-quarter time is 6-8 CH and fulltime is 9+ CH. All funding will be dispersed on a first come first serve basis until funds are depleted.

The Goodwill vouchers will be available beginning JAN. 28,2013, at the Klamath Tribes Administration Office, Community Services Department, 501 Chiloquin Blvd., in Chiloquin Oregon. 541-783-2219

Foster Home Recruitment

We are looking for a special foster family who is also willing to be a long term placement!

This recruitment is on behalf of a sibling group of 3. We are looking for a home where all three children can be placed together. Each child has their own unique personality and are a joy to be around.

Although the above is true, they have lived through some traumatic events thus far in their young life's and will need some extra time, attention and patience.
