Oregon's Bootleg Fire- Largest fire in the United States burns on Klamath Treaty Lands

Chiloquin, OR.- Since the fire started on July 6, 2021, the Bootleg has been characterized by its size and speed. One reason for the rapid growth is it's generation of dangerous fire clouds and fire storms that can spark their own lightening. Hundreds of thousands of acres, much of it within the Fremont-Winema National Forest (the former reservation and current Treaty Right land of the Klamath Tribes) has burned each day. As of July 29, 2021, the fire has burned 413,545 acres, it's Oregon's third largest wildfire since 1900, and it is considered to be the largest fire burning in the United States with only 53% containment.

The Klamath Tribal Council, the governing body for the Sovereign Nation is extremely concerned. They met again July 28th with lead department personnel to discuss planning efforts to move forward after such devastation. The Bootleg fire is within the Klamath Tribes Treaty Right area.

The magnitude of devastation to the forest and ecosystem is unimaginable. The Bootleg Fire has burned sacred parts of the Tribe's ancestral homeland. Klamath Tribal Chairman, Don Gentry said, "Our people still visit these areas to hunt, gather, pray and just spend time. There are traditional practitioners that pray and perform ceremonies there. It's just heartbreaking to think it actually happened and is still burning. It will take decades, and even then how will the trees, animals, water tributaries and ecosystem fully recover?"
Chairman Gentry continued saying, "The Klamath Tribes have been through bad fires before, we're still recovering from last year's Two Four Two Fire. But at its peak, that fire reached just over 14,000 acres, a small fraction of the Bootleg Fire's current size." Chairman Gentry is aware of tribal and community members who had to evacuate, particularly near Bly and Beatty, but fortunately no tribal homes or structures have been destroyed so far, and the Tribe gives thanks that no lives have been lost.

He added, "Our people have been here for over 14,000 years according to the archaeological evidence, our oral history tells us we was created here since the beginning of time. We have been here, we used the area so there's cultural resources," he said. "It's a devastating impact, I just feel for the families and our community, we've been directly affected."

Members of the Klamath Tribes have been sitting in on Fire fighting meetings with the U.S. Forest Service and other agencies to ensure tribal needs are represented. "I bring that up so that everyone and all the different cooperators and stakeholders in the meetings are aware of the areas of significance to the tribes," said Klamath Tribes Emergency Manager Zak Jackson. "These areas are important to the Tribes, I try to make sure that's well coordinated with all the people there."

As the fire has continued to explode in size over the past weeks, its containment levels have also increased - up to 53% as of Wednesday evening. The entirety of the containment lies on the Bootleg Fire's southwest edge, closer to Hwy's 97 and 140. It continues to grow uncontained on its northern end and has officially merged with the nearby Log Fire.

"As the winds and the topography keep pushing the fire in a different direction, you're seeing decreased fire activity. This is also the oldest part of the fire. You're almost into the third week of the fire, so those fuels are already dying out," said Incident Management Team spokesman Scott Babinowich. "There's really not a lot of fuel and then everything is being pushed in another direction. That combined with the lines is allowing that [containment] number to rise." Crews battling the fire got an unexpected lift on Monday when some scattered rain hit the fire, but according to Babinowich, the forecast remains extremely dry and fire-friendly for the next 10 days. He says it's possible the fire will keep burning in some areas all the way until the end of the season and the beginning of the winter rains.

Many of the old-growth Ponderosa Pine trees lost were up to 500 years old. Gentry is worried some parts of the forest, particularly those crucial to the Klamath Tribes history and culture, may never come back."It's not going to be the same as it was in my lifetime, by any stretch of the imagination," he said. "We're survivors, and we'll survive this. But a big part of who we are, since we're so connected to the land, has been lost."

Dear Klamath Tribal Members,

The USFS has determined to close off large portions of Klamath Treaty Rights area due to extreme public safety risk associated with the Bootleg Fire. The Tribal Council has contacted those enforcing the closure and informed them to anticipate likely encounters with Klamath Tribal members exercising their Treaty Rights within the closure area, in areas where there is not an imminent safety risk. This communication has been made to ensure that our members will not be ticketed or harassed while exercising treaty rights.

If an encounter is made, please present your Tribal Identification to verify your Tribal identity and affirm that you are exercising your Treaty Rights. Please be aware that you may be prohibited access to some areas where there is significant safety risk due to the extreme, unpredictable fire behavior and fire suppression operations. If you believe that you been denied access inappropriately, even after presenting your Tribal I.D., please contact the Tribal Council at (541) 783-2219.

The Klamath Tribes

This document provides answers to FAQ’s regarding additional general assistance fund allocations to both tribal members who have previously applied via “COVID-19 General Welfare Emergency Assistance Program 2 (the second distribution)” and those who have not yet received emergency assistance. The latter group has not yet expressed need and demonstrated impacts through The Klamath Tribes COVID-19 General Welfare Emergency Assistance Program application process.

For those tribal members who have already applied and received assistance (the second distribution), the Klamath Tribes will utilize the previously approved applicant information. The forthcoming assistance (third distribution) is for mitigation of continuing economic impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic on tribal members as demonstrated through the previous application process. For these tribal members (those who have already been through the application process), we will generate payments and include the following disclosure:

“In recognition of the continued financial impact Tribal citizens are experiencing, The Klamath Tribes Tribal Government has determined it necessary to offset those impacts by providing additional COVID-19 General Welfare Emergency Assistance. As a Tribal citizen who received prior emergency assistance, upon endorsement of this payment you are certifying those needs still exist and that if your circumstances or financial impact no longer remain you will return the assistance payment to The Klamath Tribes Tribal Government.”

Tribal members who have turned 18 since the second assistance program, or who were enrolled after December 31, 2020, or who did not apply for the second assistance program, must submit an application to be eligible for the COVID-19 General Welfare Assistance Program.

Q&A:

1. Question: How much is the additional COVID-19 general welfare emergency assistance to adult Tribal members?
   Answer: The additional assistance was approved by Tribal Council in the amount of $2,000.00 per eligible enrolled tribal member over the age of 18.

2. Question: How does this apply to multi-generational homes or multi-adult homes?
   Answer: Tribal Council approved the benefit for every eligible enrolled adult Tribal member; in homes where two or more eligible adults reside, each adult will receive $2,000.00 in assistance.

3. Question: Is there a new application that needs to be submitted by each Tribal Member?
   Answer:
   - No, applicants who have completed an application for Program 2 will not need to complete an additional application. Additional COVID-19 general welfare emergency assistance will be provided based on the continued impacts and necessary expenditures in response to the COVID-19 public health emergency.
   - For those Tribal Members who did not apply for general welfare emergency assistance in Program 2, you will need to complete and submit a COVID-19 General Welfare Emergency Assistance Application.
   - However, if your address has changed since the last distribution, contact Shantti Treetop at 541-783-2219 to update your file.

4. Question: How long will the additional assistance and new application period be open?
   Answer: From July 15, 2021 to December 30, 2021.

5. Question: Can The Klamath Tribes put COVID-19 Relief funds in minor trust accounts?
   Answer: No, COVID-19 Relief funds are to mitigate the immediate effects of the COVID-19 Virus Pandemic with an expiration date of December 31, 2021.

6. Question: Why does the additional assistance not include additional benefits for COVID-19 positive tests?
   Answer: There is assistance for COVID-19 positive individuals through other Tribal Programs. With the advent of vaccinations, Tribal Members are encouraged to protect themselves and others through those provisions.

7. Question: When do I get my check?
   Answer: The target date for mail out is August 15, 2021.

Klamath Tribes Referendum and Election Notice

2021 Referendum

Due to a lack of quorum at General Council Meetings and the need to conduct Tribal business, the Tribal Council has opted to have a referendum that provides an opportunity for all eligible Klamath Tribal Members to vote on the following documents.

- Electronic Meeting Policy;
- Standard Operating Procedures for General Council Meeting Facilitation via Electronic Technology;
- General Welfare Ordinance;
- Domestic Violence Ordinance;
- Worker’s Compensation Ordinance

Referendum Ballots will be mailed out on Wednesday, September 1, 2021. Your referendum ballot must be returned by Thursday, September 30, 2021 or it will not be counted. Counting of ballots will be done on October 1, 2021.

2022 Klamath Tribes Election

The Klamath Tribes nominations for Tribal Council and Chief Judge Positions will be held in February, 2022. If you wish to be nominated and accept that nomination for placement on the election ballot, you must be present at the February General Council meeting to accept your nomination in writing before the adjournment of that meeting, per the requirement of the Klamath Tribes Election Ordinance.

Per the Klamath Court Ordinance, the Chief Judge process for placement on the ballot is as follows:

Any person who is certified by the Tribal Council as meeting the judicial qualification requirements of this Ordinance shall be eligible to be placed on an election ballot of the Klamath Tribes or be otherwise nominated to fill a vacancy on the Tribal Courts. Requests for a certification from the Tribal Council shall be made in writing on the forms provided by the Tribal Council, and submitted not later than the second Tuesday of January before the judicial election.

Please make sure that your mailing address is current with the Member Benefits Department as ballots will be mailed to those addresses on file.

For more information on the Election Process, contact Kathy Rich, Election Clerk at 541-783-2219, ext. 101.

Wetlands transformation
July 13, 2021 by ODOT Communications Team

Orange netting outlines what will become a lake channel, allowing endangered fish safe passage. Dr. Alex Gonyaw photographed, Senior Fisheries Biologist for the Klamath Tribes.

ODOT- Oregon Department of Transportation partners with Klamath Tribes to turn a construction project into a wetlands restoration. An amazing transformation is taking place on a 40 acre parcel of fallow land on the shores of Klamath Lake. This land, the ancestral home of the Klamath and Modoc people, is coming back to life thanks to a partnership that includes the Klamath Tribes, the Oregon Department of Transportation and contractors.

In 2019, ODOT’s Highway Region 4 team began acquiring an area on the southeast shore of Klamath Lake. This arid parcel of land would serve as an ideal place for crews to restore, helping offset construction impacts affecting wetlands on the other side of the lake.

“This is part of a larger wetland restoration that will be an offset for not only Oregon 140 but future projects, too,” said Jamie Speer, project manager with Western Federal Lands, ODOT’s contractor for the construction portion of the restoration project.

In several locations around the state, we manage wetland mitigation banks, where we make “deposits” of restored habitat land from which we can make “withdrawals” when our projects impact or disturb wetland areas. This project will be a deposit.

Working together for good
The Klamath Tribes quickly realized this wetlands project could possibly serve as prime habitat for two endangered species of sucker fish reared in hatcheries and needing a home: the shortnose sucker and the Lost River sucker. Working together, everyone agreed that this re-made wetland full of marshes, ponds and lake channels would be the perfect new sanctuary for these fish – ones that have been nearly eradicated from Klamath Lake.

According to Dr. Alex Gonyaw, Senior Fisheries biologist for the Klamath Tribes, these fish are extremely important to tribal members. For thousands of years, the Klamath Tribes considered both species of sucker fish a key food source, Gonyaw said. “When winters were tough and seemed to never end, the Tribes could count on seeing the plentiful return of the fish up the rivers each spring,” he said. They knew then that the struggle of winter was ending.

As time progressed and settlers began moving into the area, farmers turned wetlands into cattle fields. Habitat loss and poor water quality made life challenging for young fish, and the return of this valuable food source to the rivers dwindled. By 1988, both species of suckers were listed by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service as endangered species.

A hopeful future
The Klamath Tribes have been raising these endangered sucker fish in their hatchery on the Sprague River. When the water levels rise next spring, staff will stock the new ponds with around 500 suckers as a test to see how they survive. The U.S. Geological Survey is providing tracking beacons for the fish, so their movements in and out of the wetlands can be monitored.

ODOT Environmental Program Coordinator Allison Cowie said the project will help young fish survival rates and make it easier for them to make their way into the deeper parts of the lake.

“I feel very encouraged to work with the Klamath Tribes and try something new that hasn’t been done yet to help these fish,” she said. “I feel really good about this project.”

Today, the Klamath Tribes hold an annual ceremony called “Return of the C’waam” (the Klamath language word for the Lost River sucker), where they gather to pray for the plentiful return of this sacred fish. With a little bit of help, the future will bring a larger return of these important fish.

Western Federal Lands plans to have the wetland restoration construction completed by September of this year, while planting and stocking of fish will continue throughout 2022.
Did You Know?
The Klamath Tribes has a Respite Relief Program:

Respite Relief Services are to provide temporary relief to the primary caregiver, from their caregiving responsibilities. The Native American Family Caregiver Support program can serve two types of unpaid family caregivers: (Note: foster care payments are not considered “income”)

1. Family caregiver: An adult family member, or another individual, who is an unpaid informal provider of in-home and community care to an older Indian (60+ years of age, enrolled in any federally recognized tribe) or to an individual with Alzheimer’s disease or a related disorder with neurological and organic brain dysfunction.

Respite is in the form of contracting the Elder’s family or non-family member(s) to provide care to the Elder. Schedule, care and duties are determined on a case-by-case basis.

2. Grandparent or older individual who is a relative caregiver:
A grandparent or step-grandparent of a child, or a relative of a child by blood, marriage, or adoption, who is 55 years of age or older, enrolled in a federally recognized tribe, and:
• Lives with the child;
• Is the primary caregiver of the child because the biological or adoptive parents are unable or unwilling to serve as the primary caregiver of the child; and
• Has a legal relationship to the child, as such legal custody or guardianship, or is raising the child informally

Respite may come in many forms such as: a Child Care Provider, on-call Babysitter, After-School Program Fees, Summer Camps, Spring/Winter Break Programs, etc.

3. Must reside within the Tribes service delivery area; Klamath County of Oregon.

There are a few things left to do for ODOT project:

Comments by Dr. Alex Gonyaw

Since July 13, soil material has been moved to create a mix of permanent emergent and ephemeral wetland, open water, and wet upland habitat. This approach creates the most benefit for fish and wildlife by creating a mosaic of habitat types and niche diversity. Channels are now being dug from Upper Klamath Lake to the ponded area, creating permanently watered healthy aquatic habitat for juvenile C’waam and Koptu raised by the Klamath Tribes to use prior to entering the lake.

The final connection to the lake will be performed at some point during the summer, allowing the new wetland habitats to be hydrologically connected with Upper Klamath Lake. Root wads will also be added to create habitat complexity and hiding places for many species. In this and subsequent years, native plants will be established until the wetland reaches a satisfactorily functional state. Once the water quality in the new wetland reaches an equilibrium, the Klamath Tribes will regularly release fish to ensure the continued existence of these endangered and sacred species for perpetuity.

Headline: Welcoming students back to in-person learning; learn the key steps schools are taking to operate safely

Dozens of safety measures are in place as schools in Klamath County do everything they can to operate safely for students and educators. Schools all around Oregon are using face coverings, testing for COVID-19 onsite, washing hands with soap and water or using hand sanitizer, and cleaning frequently touched surfaces. Oregon schools are also using distancing of three to six feet apart, relying on stable cohorts to group kids safely, and maximizing airflow in closed spaces and more.

“We are so excited students are returning to the classroom,” said April Campbell, director of Oregon Department of Education’s Office of Indian Education. “This has been an extremely challenging year, and many tribal communities have been disproportionately impacted by COVID-19 and this impact has upended every aspect of our lives, particularly for our kids. Knowing native peoples are resilient, we are optimistic for the future. The first priority is the safety of our students, youth, families, teachers, staff and the community. All school districts are taking the necessary steps to keep students and our communities safe.”

Oregon Department of Education (ODE) has stressed the importance of in-person learning for students.

“Schools and in-person learning not only provide the education that Oregon’s children need to succeed, but schools also provide for social, mental and emotional growth and support, nutritious meals and access to medical care,” said Colt Gill, director of the ODE. “Going back to in-person learning is also an opportunity for students to have fun and see friends, which can help ease anxiety, depression or other mental and emotional challenges caused by the pandemic.”

For more information about how local school districts are keeping kids, families, teachers and staff safe, visit http://www.kfalls.k12.or.us. For more information about the steps schools throughout Oregon are taking to operate safely visit Oregon.gov/readyschools.

The Joseph S. Ball Scholarship Information

The Joseph S. Ball scholarship is currently accepting applications. The scholarship was created by Joseph S. Ball for individuals who are members of the Klamath Tribe, which is defined as those people currently enrolled or who can prove descendancy from someone on the 1954 rolls.

Mr. Ball was a Modoc/Klamath Indian, born in 1914 on the Klamath Indian Reservation. He built, owned and operated the Sand Creek service station and coffee shop with his wife, Evelyn, from 1954 until they retired in 1973.

He was a former tribal councilman and was Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Remaining Members. Mr. Ball passed away in 2005.

High school seniors who are planning to attend a trade school, community college or four year university and expect to have a 3.0 GPA their senior year of high school are encouraged to apply for this scholarship. Please note the application deadline is October 31, 2021 (May 1st all other years).

This scholarship is being administered by U.S. Bank Charitable Services Group and applications may be obtained by emailing charitableservices@usbank.com
Social Services Department

Children & Family Services (CFS) Program

Program Spotlight

Who
- 16 Youth most previous ICWA cases and either in guardianships and few currently in foster care
- 2 Adult Relatives
- 11 Staff 2 SSD, 4 CFS, 1 YFGC, and 4 Oregon DHS

What
- CFS Trip to Lava Beds and Medicine Lake, California

When
- Tuesday, July 13, 2021

Where
- Lava Beds and Medicine Lake, California

Purpose
The CFS Program invited Tribal children (at least 9 years of age) in foster care, relative placement, in-home case, active assessment, adoption or guardianship to participate in the event. The purpose of the event was to provide cultural support for children, families, and guardians involved in the child welfare system. The CFS Program wants all Tribal children in foster care or guardianships to know that you matter and we care about you; we look forward to facilitating more events and activities in the future.

Highlights
The event was enjoyed by all who attended. This event served as a major milestone for the CFS Program, which has not hosted a trip in many years. Some of the highlights include:
- Began our day with prayer, smudge, song, and introductions
- Youth introduced themselves in the way they knew how; CFS Program Manager explained to some youth who their grandparents are to assist with understanding their genealogy and connection to The Klamath Tribes
- Bonding which took place between youth who just met for the first time
- Youth listening to details of the Modoc War (along with pre and post context) while being in the physical spaces the events took place
- Prayer ties were prepared by Staff which included sage, cedar, wild celery root, tobacco, and lavender; each participant was given a tie to leave at the post
- Listening to the youth sing loudly to songs on the radio was heartwarming
- DHS Caseworker outside of Klamath County brought enrolled Tribal youth hundreds of miles and overnight to participate in the event
- Local DHS District Manager and Child Welfare Director participated in the event; first-of-its-kind collaboration between CFS Program and the local office
- One staff member and some youth had previously been in foster care, while some were still in foster care. One staff member had previous engagement with child welfare and worked hard to get their children returned back. It felt full-circle in that everyone had some connection to child welfare in different aspects, but all were able to come together and enjoy the day.

Monthly payments for families with kids

Did you file taxes in the last 2 years? Then you don’t have to do anything to get the money you’re already owed!
If you filed your 2020 taxes this year or filed your 2019 taxes last year, or used the IRS “Non-Filer Portal” to get a stimulus check last year, you don’t need to do anything. The IRS will automatically send you a monthly payment by direct deposit or check starting on July 15, 2021.

The Child Tax Credit is $3,000 to $3,600 per child with advanced monthly payments.
In order to get money to families quickly, the IRS will pay half of the credit as monthly payments now and the other half when you file your taxes next year. In total, you’ll receive a total of $3,600 for each child under 6 and $3,000 for each child between 6 and 17.

Didn’t file taxes in the last 2 years? There’s a 1 easy step to start getting your Child Tax Credit payments.
Just fill out a simple form to begin receiving your monthly Child Tax Credit payments. You can access it by going to childtaxcredit.gov

All you’ll need to apply are:
• A reliable mailing address
• E-mail address
• Your children’s Social Security Numbers
• Your Social Security Number (or ITIN)
• Your bank account information (if you want to receive your payment by direct deposit)

Eligibility: Most families, even those with little to no income, can receive the full amount. If you are a single parent making less than $112,000 or a married couple making less than $150,000—and have children under age 18 who will live with you for more than half of 2021—you are likely eligible for the full benefit. These benefits do not affect your eligibility for other federal benefits like SNAP.
